Start with a useful task

Use the official tools discussed in this reel.

Define a small app

Use the source's React Native and Expo workflow to describe one useful task and the screens it needs. Review generated code and dependencies. An AI-created interface still needs a data model, error handling and a realistic device experience.

Test the installed build

Run the app on relevant devices and check navigation, permissions, sign-in, network failures and accessibility. Use real screenshots from the tested build. The source mentions an unnamed screenshot skill; no unrelated plugin repository is substituted here.

Prepare store information

Follow Expo's current submission guide and Apple's review requirements. Check signing, privacy disclosures, required account features and accurate metadata. Developer-program and build-service requirements remain separate from producing code.

Check the real result

Keep one repeatable example and inspect its actual output.

Verify production behavior

Use a properly configured backend and keep credentials out of the shipped app. Check account deletion and privacy obligations where applicable.

Check every claim

Store screenshots and descriptions must reflect actual features. A prototype demonstration does not prove readiness or guarantee same-day approval.

Keep the handoff

Save the tested build version, known issues and submission checklist. The keyword is App. This guide performs no build, purchase, deployment or store submission.
